OUR COMPETITORS AND MARKETS

AN INTRODUCTION TO FOREIGN TRADE

By ARNOLD W. LAHEE, Consultant on Foreign Markets

A presentation of our commercial relationships with the major foreign countries. Each country is considered as a problem in itself; the treatment in each case is determined by our relations, one country being considered as a competitor, another as a source of raw material, a third as a market for our manufactured products, etc. The facts of commercial geography find their place in relation to our particular interest in the country under discussion. The book was written with the needs of college students in mind; adequate references, synopses, and discussion subjects are supplied. The business man also will find the work interesting and very valuable.

STATISTICAL METHODS

AS APPLIED TO ECONOMICS AND BUSINESS

By FREDERICK C. MILLS, Columbia University

The essentials of modern statistical technique are presented in this book with special reference to the problems confronting the modern economist and business man. Sections on graphic presentation, price and quantity index numbers, and the analysis of time series supplement chapters on frequency distribution, averages, and measures of variation. The subject of correlation is treated at length, separate chapters being devoted to simple linear correlation, non-linear correlation, the measurement of relationship between time series, and multiple and partial correlation. The author, believing that statistical methods cannot be taught effectively or understood fully except with relation to a particular subject-matter, has explained these methods throughout in terms of specific economic and business problems.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE FINANCE

By GEORGE W. EDWARDS, New York University

The practical problems and methods of financing foreign trade are described in this book with the inclusiveness of the expert. The first part explains the intricate machinery of foreign exchange and international banking; the second part presents an analysis of the principles of foreign exchange. The treatment is not confined to the United States, but is comparative, dealing with the practices of the commercial nations of Europe, as well as those of South America and the Far East. The export of agricultural as well as manufactured products is discussed. The book is indispensable for all who are interested in foreign trade from the point of view of world economics, law, business, or banking.

GERMAN TRADE ASSOCIATIONS

THE COAL KARTELL

By ARCHIBALD H. STOCKER, Columbia University

This book comprises an exposition of the nature of the German kartell, and of its development and its use in the coal industry. In discussing the nature and history of the kartell, the author deals with the legal status and the possible accomplishment of trade associations designed to regulate competition and thus to stabilize industries.
